

EMPLOYEE BENEFITS WITH INDEPENDENT FREEDOM

Subcontractor Consultants

Subcontracting allows you the same flexibility, freedom and focused work that comes with being an independent contractor with the added security, steady project pipeline, training and support of an employee. Adept Packaging has a history of successful transitions from independent packaging consultants to subcontractors. Hear from our associates.

Jan Gates
VP, CLIENT SOLUTIONS

“When a client wants more work completed than I can do, it is good to be able to refer Adept Packaging with confidence.”

Jan is Vice President of Client Solutions based out of California for Adept Packaging. She was in retirement after 10 years at Abbot Vascular when the Adept Packaging Founder, Prateek Lal, approached her to become a subcontractor within the Adept Packaging unit. Jan has been with Adept Packaging for 8 years and enjoys working with a group that is self-motivated, team-minded and always has the ability learn and adapt to new project challenges.

What do you like about working for Adept Packaging, compared to being an independent consultant?

The quality of people. I enjoy their dedication to the field and how they try to complete good, compliant packaging work for clients.

What value or benefit does working with Adept Packaging bring to your status as a consultant?

Benefit: Adept provides a more steady source of income.

Value: When a client wants more work completed than I can do -- it is good to be able to refer Adept Packaging with confidence, that packaging work will be completed well.

How did you find out about Adept Packaging?

I tried to have my company (Abbott Vascular) hire Adept Packaging for work. I met Prateek (Founder of Adept Packaging) at Pack Expo – when the company first started. His ideas for Adept Packaging seemed sound. Having Abbott hire Adept Packaging, at that time, didn't work out, but we kept in touch. Later, Prateek hired me after I 'retired' from Abbott for work at another company I had admired from a distance.

How would you describe Adept Packaging as an organization?

Open to new ideas and adaptable for employees all over the country (and Europe).
