

EMPLOYEE BENEFITS WITH INDEPENDENT FREEDOM

Subcontractor Consultants

Subcontracting allows you the same flexibility, freedom and focused work that comes with being an independent contractor with the added security, steady project pipeline, training and support of an employee. Adept Packaging has a history of successful transitions from independent packaging consultants to subcontractors. Hear from our associates.

Jeff Abel
PRINCIPAL PKG ENGINEER

“Being at Adept Packaging brings a sense of belonging we don't get as an independent contractor.”

Jeff Abel is a Principal Packaging Engineer in the Food & Beverage and CPG Industry based out of Florida for Adept Packaging. He was an independent contractor for 5 years when he decided to join the Adept Packaging team full-time in May 2018.

What do you like about working for Adept Packaging, compared to being an independent consultant?

I like the security of being a full-time employee and the increased number of opportunities that Adept Packaging brings. Being at Adept Packaging also brings a sense of belonging we don't get as independent contractors.

How did you find out about Adept Packaging?

We first connected through LinkedIn. I saw an opportunity the recruiting manager, Jennifer Margherita, posted and responded about it.

How would you describe Adept Packaging as an organization?

Adept Packaging is very connected with key food, beverage and consumer goods companies. Adept Packaging leverages our experience to clients well. They are an excellent alternative to independently contracting with companies ourselves.
